July 17, 2015

There will soon be a new director for Eastman Business Park.

On Friday, Eastman Kodak Co. chief financial officer John McMullen announced that park director Mike Alt would retire after a 35-year career with the company, according to a press release sent by U.S. Rep. Louise Slaughter, D-Fairport.

"Mike is a dear friend and while we will be sad to lose his steady leadership, I am happy for him as he moves on to his next chapter. We spoke last night, and he promises me he isn't leaving Rochester, the community he loves," said Slaughter. "For years I have worked alongside Mike to accomplish the transformation that Eastman Business Park has gone through. Great things are still ahead for Mike and I will continue to be a partner and friend for him and for Eastman Business Park."

Kodak officials could not be reached for comment.

According to Alt's LinkedIn account, he has served as director of the 1,100-acre mixed use technology and industrial campus since 2010. Previously, he worked for 20 years a manufacturing manager with the company and for 10 years a manufacturing engineer, including a stint as engineering supervisor in the chemical manufacturing organization.
